Jerry Mottern, next, was one of about 100 fifth graders who enjoyed the Hawaiian-type chow Tuesday at the school. See-from right, Cassie Hoyt entertains with a native dance. Richard Miser, right, prepares to go native as he takes off his tennis shoes. The luau has been held every year for the past 10 years as a climax to the social studies unit. Instructors in charge of the party are Mrs. Gladys Boyd, Mrs. Marguerite Knoll and Mrs. Lucille Jones.

Watch Out, Mother!

Twin Falls' students spent their last day in class today to the schools.

Dr. E. H. Ragland said Twin Falls had an "extremely late school year and ran later than some of the colleges and universities in the country," was due to a delayed start to allow for the new school year came.

Dr. E. H. Ragland, superintendent, said classes would not begin. Thus, students were given the teachers time to complete their grading. The students will get their report cards at the Twin Falls County Fair which is held the first week of September.

The new school year will begin Friday at their respective schools. No buses will be run. Friday, the students must be seen SCHOOL, Page 2, Col. 8

Reds Bombed

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. military command said today B-52 bombers dropped at least 4,500 tons of bombs in May, in the heaviest strikes of the year despite congressional critics.

The Viet Cong said the bombing was higher than during the Johnson administration.

The military command said the B-52s struck at Communist buildings 272 times during May and that they maintained their record pace today by dropping 500 tons of bombs overnight on the Danang region where 50 guerrillas have been killed in three weeks.

Burned At Hansen

HANSEN — An Idaho Power Co. employee remained in critical condition in Seattle Wednesday where he was flown for emergency treatment of burns late Tuesday night after his body came in contact with a 7,200-volt electrical line.

Melvin L. Cook, 37, of Nampa, recently burned his right portion of his upper body about 30 p.m. when his shoulder touched the power line.

Earl Haroldeen, Idaho Power division manager, said Mr. Cook was a member of a crew installing a new line between Hansen and Mountain View stations. He said Mr. Cook was raising a guy wire while riding in the bucket of a special bucket truck.

The victim was apparently watching one line which he reported failed to see the other line and his left shoulder came in contact with the line.

It was reported by Idaho Power officials that Mr. Cook slumped over the controls in the bucket of the truck, making it impossible for workmen on the ground about 40 feet below, to lower the bucket. It was reported other workers climbed up the pole to remove the bucket to the ground.

Mr. Haroldeen said the worker, who was a new employee

Collision Death Toll Set At 74

PEARL HARBOR (UPI) — A pugilist bid sad Navy tradition. Taps at sunset told the men scanning the smooth tropical waters their 73 comrades of the sea were lost forever.

From the carrier Kearsarge, Rear Adm. Jerome H. King Jr. radioed the signal that ended the search for the men who went down with the bow of the destroyer Frank E. Evans in the South China Sea:

"We have absolute confidence that we have picked up all survivors."

The mix of the Kearsarge gathered on its flight deck at sunset Tuesday for memorial services for the men of the Evans. A bugler's Taps echoed in the traditional farewell to men lost at sea.

The task-force of ships that raced to the scene of the Evans' collision with the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne had recovered one body, marking the official death count 74.

Now they saluted away from where at 3:15 a.m. Tuesday the Melbourne sliced the Evans in two. Among the dead in the Evans' bow: three brothers from New Jersey.

Not since the five Sullivan brothers of Waterloo, Iowa, went down together aboard the USS Juneau in the Solomon Islands during World War II has the U.S. Navy had worse family tragedy.

Spokesmen said the Evans had a father-son team, too—Chief Gunner's Mate Lawrence John Riley of Costa Mesa, Calif., and his son Boller Temple J.C. Riley.

The Riley senior survived the collision. His son went down in the bow. Riley senior had postponed his retirement and signed on for two more years so he could serve the Navy with his son.

They put the two warships on the collision course on a clear moonlight night will be determined officially by separate U.S. and Australian boards of inquiry which may pool their findings later.

Construction Slows In T.F. As Strikes Continue

Widespread union strikes in Twin Falls continued to keep the lid on construction at the College of Southern Idaho and other projects in the area have slowed down.

Ironworkers went on strike Monday and other unions who joined the strike and failed to

Although the Bank of Idaho project is union, there has been no delay there. Most men on that project are from Idaho Falls and are not involved with unions striking for higher wages.

On strike are painters — four men in Twin Falls — and ironworkers — sheet metal workers and rodders.

The strikes have forced an estimated 500 men in Southern Idaho, but the only major project in Twin Falls affected by the strikes is the work on the college's physical education building.

John Rogers Jr., of Rogers Sheet Metal, said several small projects, such as homes and small buildings, have been affected by the strikes. He said some construction would not be finished until the strikes are resolved. It is unclear how many small buildings are affected in Twin Falls.

Workers at the Bank of Idaho walked off the job Monday when non-union men from Bennett's Glass and Paint reported to the site with a delivery of glass.

It was later determined that Bennett's personnel have a right to deliver products to the site, and the union men returned to work, reported John Angerbaumer, Bennett's manager here.

Bennett's has brought in four union men from Salt Lake City to install glass at the bank site, according to Mr. Angerbaumer.

A federal mediator is due in Boise next Monday to discuss the strikes with union officials and members of the Associated General Contractors.

Painters get $4.50 an hour and have been offered a $1.20 an hour increase in a three year period. This has been turned down.

Ironworkers want an increase of 40¢ an hour over three years; roofers want 55¢ an hour in three years, and sheet metal workers want an increase to 36¢ an hour in three years.

Police Probing Robbery Here They're Victims

A police officer became a victim Tuesday.

Today, fellow officers are investigating the matter and Police Chief Frank Barnett said there is a suspect.

A total of $204 in parking meter revenue was stolen from a three-wheel scooter parked next to the police station Tuesday afternoon.

Officer John Stevens was preparing to take several bags of money to the bank. He took one bag, leaving the $204, and never returned. In his absence, he returned to the police station for another bag of money. When he returned to his spot, the money was gone.

Chief Barnett said Officer Stevens was gone less than a minute.

"If America were to turn its back on the world, a dreading form of peace would settle over this planet, the kind of peace that is reflected in 'Gone With the Wind,'" he said.

"We must rule out unilateral disarmament," Nixon said. "In the real world, that simply will not work."

The chief executive addressed the issue of nuclear裁军, or nuclear disarmament, during a speech to Air Force Academy here before continuing on to California and a Sunday meeting in the Midway Islands with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Speaking in Falcon Field, the 37th anniversary of the other members of the academy cadet corps, the President said "the aggressors of this world are not going to give the United States a period of grace in which to

Long-Necked Machine Helps Install Windows At Bank

A special "Hi-Reach" machine capable of lifting 1,000-pound sheets of glass 40 feet high with a current of 100 amperes is being used by the company that installed windows at the Bank of Idaho's Glass and Paint Co. in the fast-growing Bank of Idaho building.

"This is the first time the machine has been used in this part of the country, and it's the only one in the Intermountain Area," says John Angerbaumer, Magic Valley district manager.

A vacuum lifter consisting of eight suction cups holds the sheet of glass, while two or three men in the basket at the end of the hydraulic boom install it.

"We hope to be finished with the machine by the end of this week," said Mr. Angerbaumer. "Without its aid we would have to construct scaffolding from the ground up, the bank's three floors, one side at a time, and it would take twice as long and a lot more work."

The machine and platform cost $10,000, the saving in time made Hi-Reach a good investment for the company, he concluded.

Progress Reported Berger Store Robbery Trio Arraigned

Three men accused of robbing the Berger store last February have been arraigned in Twin Falls County Probate Court.

Each has been ordered held in jail in lieu of posting $3,000 bond.

Kenneth Moon, 35, and Patrick Kilmer, 31, both Seattle, and Earl S. Carter, 44, Marysville, were indicted in the Berger store last weekend from Reno, Nev.

They had been ordered held in jail pending trial.

Robert Matthews, plant manager, for the new Kellwood Co. bakery plant which is being built near here, said Twin Falls people should see a noticeable amount of progress on the structure this week.

He said, "We will now, most of the work, be helping done underground. To the person driving by the site, it appears little has been done. Mr. Matthews said the foundation is being laid and footings set, and the tall columns should go up this week."

After the columns are set, the concrete slab will be put up, and the public will see a big difference, he said.

The plant manager said the knitting room section of the plant will be constructed first. He said this should be completed by July, and there will be some production activity by the first of the year.

Instructors for the training classes will be arriving in Twin Falls this week. Mr. Matthews said the classes should begin in the old C. C. Anderson building within six weeks. The new classes will be located in the College of Southern Idaho.

Mr. Matthews said Woods Maintenance superintendent KELLWOOD, Page 2, Col. 1

Medicaid

Medicaid is a joint federal-state program which was designed to provide free medical care for "substantially all" those unable to pay for it by 1975. But the looseness with which the Medicaid law was written has opened the program to spiraling costs and millions of dollars in abuses.

To try to bring the Medicaid program back under control: President Nixon has recommended slicing $505 million from the $3.1 billion Medicaid budget submitted by President Johnson for fiscal 1970. If this reduction holds, budgets of states, which have to match federal funds, will be reduced by $1 billion.

Cuts proposed by the administration involve several categories of payments authorized for professional and institutional aid under the program. Doctors would be paid prevailing Blue Shield rates. In some states they are paid more.

Dental fees and nursing home charges also would be pared back. In addition, the Senate Finance Committee has approved an amendment to the law which would permit states to cut back their services under Medicaid to five essentials: inpatient and outpatient hospital care, nursing home care for the aged, laboratory and x-ray services and physicians' services.

The present law forbids states to reduce services once they start them.

Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware has characterized the present Medicaid system as "running wild." There is ample evidence that Medicaid needs a good overhauling before it bankrupts itself.

Times Change?

Of four nations recently prominent in the economic news, two have been attracting attention because of exceptional industrial strength and two because of weakness.

The strong ones are West Germany, which is luring monetary reserves from other lands, and Japan, sought to limit exports because its textiles are taking over the U.S. market.

The two troubled countries are

Britain and France, plagued by weakness in foreign trade and in their currencies.

The generation old enough to remember World War II will note a certain irony in the last two dozen years. The Axis powers, with their industries in smoking shambles at the end of the war, have risen from the ashes. The two Allied powers, flushed with triumph then, are in trouble now.

To the victors belong the spoils?

MR. SPECTATOR

An Extended Lifespan

Don Oakley is one of the fellows who makes his living writing for the Newspaper Enterprise Association, one of the nationwide organizations supplying feature and other interesting news to newspapers of the nation.

Mr. Oakley is versatile and writes on many subjects. He does a great deal of research along the way and sometimes this research results in another interesting yarn in addition to the one he was after.

One he wrote recently on the increase in the life span among humans is one of this sort. Mr. Spectator thought you might like to mosey along for awhile and take his findings, and ideas, into consideration. So here goes:

"The dramatic increase in average life expectancy that has been witnessed in the past half century is the triumph of modern medicine. Thanks to the conquest or containment of the major diseases, especially those of childhood, more people are surviving into maturity and old age than ever before in history.

"But as for lengthening the actual lifespan of the human species — as opposed to merely improving the odds for completing the proverbial three score and ten — medicine is currently up against a wall. There is a built-in aging process, which, though it may vary from individual to individual, puts an absolute limit on the number of years the human organism remains vigorous before senility and finally death overtakes it.

"One theory about the underlying mechanism of aging that has attracted renewed interest lately, reports 'Geriatric Focus,' is that aging may be the result of the accumulation (or lack of elimination) of certain 'toxic' substances in the cellular structure of the body.

"One of the most noted researchers in this field is Dr. Jose P. Brachovici, a physiologist at the University of California in Los Angeles, who believes that the key to aging lies in the cell's ability, or failing ability, to synthesize protein.

"Accumulated protein may, thus be the 'toxic' substance and the secret of the fountain of youth may be to find some way to nudge the slowed-down machinery of the cell to handle it.

"The time is overripe," says Brachovici, "for a co-ordinated large-scale research program on the origins and mechanisms of aging and senescence. Aging occasionally is referred to as a chronic disease that no one finally survives. In this sense, aging research should be regarded as important as cancer research, for example."

"The extent to which man will be able to increase his life expectancy beyond 100 years, and how soon he will be able to do it, depends ultimately on the total amount of research effort and indirectly on the level of interest expressed by the public.

"Exciting as this prospect appears, and 'inhumane' as it may be to question its wisdom, the mystery of aging is one more area where scientists might be wise to take a long look before leaping into a crash program of conquest."

"The gift of medical weapons to the undeveloped nations after World War II without an accompanying program of birth control has presented the world with a very real population explosion. Any spectacular extension of the last stage of life without a corresponding extension of the years spent in every other stage could have even more profound consequences."

"Suppose science does find a way to postpone senility — and senility would have to be postponed, otherwise there would be no point in simply increasing lifespan — by 40 or 50 years so that tomorrow the man of 100 is as alert and active as the man of 50 today."

"What would millions of vigorous oldsters of 100 find to occupy their energies during all those long years following retirement from their jobs or professions? How would they be supported? How many of us really need, or could use, an extra half-century of life?"

"We could revise the age of retirement upwards, but what then about the ambitious younger man champing at the bit for his turn to take over?"

"Instead of just a population problem, we would have a 'generational problem,' a much more magnified one than we have now. Instead of just a question of finding room at the table for new generations, it would be a question of deferring their ambitions in a world run by old (but not aged) men."

"Either we would have a population of aimless, purposeless centenarians or a population of impatient, frustrated people in their early and middle years."

"Death is cruel, and always too soon, but it does at least serve the function of removing the old to make way for the young, and it leaves the young who dream and dare and revitalize society."

"Nature seems to have worked out a pretty good system, arriving over the eons of millions of years of human evolution at a lifespan nicely balanced between infancy, youth maturity and old age."

"We ought to think awhile before tampering too fundamentally with that balance."

Those ABM's Could Provide Insurance

WASHINGTON — Anti-missile defenses (ABMs) need not hamper disarmament negotiations, and they could provide insurance against cheating unscrupulous governments.

That is the novel concept advanced by physicist Freeman J. Dyson in a nine-point defense of President Nixon's "Safeguard" ABM deployment. His plan, however, remains limited to the Senate Armed Services Committee which is studying the President's plan.

Dyson is a British-born scientist who is now a professor at Princeton University's prestigious Institute for Advanced Studies. He did operations research for the RAF bomber command during World War II, and in 1963, wrote a study of Russia's missile defenses for the U.S. arms control and disarmament commission.

Most of the disarmament speculation to date has assumed that missile defenses, U.S. and Russian, would be a focus for forthcoming arms talks. Dyson argues that the United States and Russia, he claims, would be willing to discuss curbs on defensive as well as offensive missiles.

Dyson, however, takes the position that existence of ABM systems would enhance prospects for a disarmament treaty limiting the number of offensive weapons. A U.S. missile defense would, in his view, minimize the risk from concealed nuclear weapons or other cheating by Russia under such a pact.

In that way, says Dyson, ABM systems would make it easier to live with a disarmament treaty limiting offensive strike forces. While he presents arguments in favor of an ABM deployment, Dyson has two main points of view: the administration's rationale in its support. He argues that Russia's deployment of the big SS-9 ICBM is no more ominous for the United States than our new Poseidon missile is for Russia.

Dyson also contends that the potential nuclear fallout from Safeguard's Spartan missile warhead is dangerously high. He says that fall-out level should be reduced, even at the expense of the Spartan missile's performance.

Dyson is one of a number of academics who have submitted papers in support of ABM deployment. All will be made public when the committee prints its ABM testimony before the Senate Safeguard show-down in a month or so.

In these still unpublished comments some university and industry experts are understood to challenge basic arguments put forward by ABM critics. The idea that a U.S. missile defense would be useful in encouraging disarmament negotiations gets a thorough kicking around.

C. M. Herzfeld, former director of missile defense for the Pentagon's advanced Research Project Agency, reportedly argues that there is no evidence at all that an ABM deployment would jeopardize the concluding of a disarmament limitation.

Herzfeld is now a physicist with the defense space group in the electrophysics lab of International Telephone and Telegraph.

Richard Rosecrance, former member of the Senate Department of Defense policy planning commission and a former strategic professor at the University of California, contends that Safeguard development might improve prospects for the talks.

He argues that if a "Safeguard" deployment is approved Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, hard-line Kremlin militarists like the "Russia arms initiative" will quite clearly be matched by a U.S. response.

Gordon J. McDonald, vice chancellor for research at the University of California at Santa Barbara, notes that the ABM would protect the U.S. deterrent forces but would NOT enhance its strike force. It would therefore encourage disarmament proposals in McDonald's view.

Some of the professional comments seemed to be aimed at the book-length evaluation of "Safeguard" prepared by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a panel of consultants headed by Abram Chayes and James R. Thompson.

For example, Rand Corporation member of the Pentagon's defense science board, contends it is not true, as argued in the Kennedy study, that two SS-9 warheads would have to be aimed at each U.S. missile to be almost sure destruction. Larter says the Russian targeting system would send a second warhead only when the first had failed.

Larter also argues against another thesis of the study—that devices for penetrating Safeguard defenses could easily be developed. He contends that U.S. penetration aids have been neither easy to devise nor inexpensive. Two systems developed for our Polaris missiles proved ineffective after they were deployed, he says. Larter Herzfeld agrees that research and development for U.S. penetration devices required several years of work and a very large investment.

Note: Statements in opposition to Safeguard have been submitted by Armed Services Committee members. They are reported to be for the most part, a restatement of arguments already well publicized, by anti-war groups.

The President And The Senator

WASHINGTON — President Nixon apparently switched from Republicans to Democrats on the Senate Select Committee on Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABA) program and invited Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, one of the few authentic Senate grannies, to a private chat in the White House 10 days ago.

Mr. Nixon feels that Anderson is essential if the highly controversial Safeguard plan — deployment of two ABMs in North Dakota and Montana — is to get through the Senate.

The President gave Anderson a soft sell, asking for firm commitment; Nor did Anderson offer one. But the Senate chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Anti-Ballistic Missile, Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, has now withdrawn his opposition to the Safeguard plan.

Minister's Wife Takes Aim

At Hawaii's 'Hula' Image

HONOLULU (UPI) — The modern Hawaii," said Rev. Edith Wolfe, "the 'sophomore' begins change Hawaii's 'hula' girl in September and continues image."

The minister might be just the person to do it. She is a key leader in preparations for the simultaneous commemoration of the Hawaii Sesquicentennial, the 150th anniversary of the arrival of the first missionaries in the "Sandwich Islands."

Miss Wolfe is hoping to convey to visitors a sense of Hawaii's history in terms of humans rather than in terms of hula skirts, palm trees and surf.

"People come to Hawaii with a hula girl image," the minister said. "They don't think about going to museums and historic tours which they would automatically include in a trip to Europe."

"Instead, they have seen a travel poster of a hula girl with flowers in her hair beckoning them to 'join her on a long, white beach.'

When the tourists arrive, she said, they find the only hula girls around are in shows, "singing and dancing and the sun and surf is fine," the minister said, "but these don't tell Hawaii's fascinating story."

The Rev. Wolfe is ordained in the United Church of Christ, which is underwriting the Sesquicentennial along with the Hawaii Missions Children's Society—an organization composed of the descendants of the 12 missionary companies that came to Hawaii.

The minister said she wants to erase the "anti-missionary phenomenon" that has arisen. "We don't want to glamorize or romanticize the mission," she said "but to be fair to them."

"We want to show that their coming to Hawaii was not solely a religious event," she said. "It was a human event, an historic event. The missionaries laid the foundations of Wolfe said there is plenty to see and do.

"There are at least 18 different historical sites all within walking distance of each other in Honolulu," she said, "including Iolani Palace, the U.S. Mint, the Aliiolani Hale for royalty in the United States."

"Then there are the people. The minister said she is continually seeing tourists taking pictures of palm trees and hula girls, saying, 'when the really unique thing about Hawaii is its English missionaries.'

"There are also you can look in a school playground and find Caucasians, Hawaiians, Japanese, Chinese, Filipinos and others playing together."

"Where else do you have a city with such racial diversity where the people live in harmony?"

Idaho Falls Tot Drowns In Ditch

The girl was reported missing about 9 p.m. Her body was located about midnight in a canal opposite a bridge after an intensive search by the combined forces of the Idaho Falls Police Department, the Bonneville County sheriff's jeep patrol and volunteers.

Officer Says SDS Seeks 'Communistic' Society

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House Internal Security Committee, formerly the American Activities Committee, has infiltrated a Students for a Democratic Society meeting right here.

Chairman Richard H. Ichord, day after SDS leader declared it's time for the students to "take over" and form a truly democratic society, said that he would "tolerate no campus disorders."

Father John Mallard, who joined the Gainesville, Fla., crowd in the room was ordered by police force last February, said and was a mixture of well-SDS members, cussed him, and threatened his life when they persons. The usual heavy police discovered he was a police guard was on hand both inside officer at a student rally on the University of Florida campus committee pass was required April 11.

Mallard, a former University of Florida student, was the first hearing for admission.

It was the first hearing for a nine-member committee since it got Ichord as chairman, five new members and its new name by House action earlier this year.

Ichord said the hearings on SDS were held because of evidence his investigators have turned up about the organization which claims 30,000 members in 300 local chapters. It has been active in several campuses nationwide.

He said if news accounts of SDS camp activities are correct, "a serious threat is posed to the country's internal security." Ichord said the hearings will help Congress in determining whether subversion exists in a form that would make necessary additional legislation.

has become the first married man in the U.S. to be ordained a deacon in the Roman Catholic Church according to the Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, Bishop of Rochester, N.Y., who performed the ceremony in Indianapolis June 1. The Rev. The scientists, in an open letter to the governor, said they were "seriously concerned by the prospect of wholesale damage to important waterfowl habitat by the possible loss of whole colonies of animals which play important roles in preserving the planet an environment favorable to man."

Accompanying the letter were 61 pages of articles and papers strongly critical of continued use of DDT and urging a moratorium on the pesticide's use, including inland waterways and even the oceans.

"The scientific evidence now available shows beyond question that DDT and its residues have caused serious and irreparable pollution of the delicate birds and fishes," the scientists wrote. "There are many reports of destructive effects of DDT on shellfish (shrimps, crabs, oysters) and on beneficial insects which help provide natural controls on other insects."

The latest research material were put together by Dr. John H. Phillips Jr., director of Stanford University's Hopkins Marine Station in Pacific Grove, Calif., with help from others involved in world War II by Swiss chemist Paul H. Mueller who received a Nobel prize for his work, has probably saved millions of people from death by malaria, typhus and other insect-borne diseases and has saved billions of dollars in crops from insect pests.

The principal difficulty is that DDT is a "hard" pesticide and takes years to decompose, to harmless products by weathering and biological processes. It accumulates in the environment when it is carried from land to sea by rivers and runoff and also evaporates from lakes and soil along with water and is dispersed worldwide by winds.

The scientists say that DDT and its residues are found in Antarctic penguins and seals and in fishes living thousands of miles out at sea."

"Though the sea is immense, the accumulation of DDT in it has reached a point where it poses a grave threat to marine food resources," they told the governor.

"Defenders of DDT point out that concentrations in the sea are very low. This is true, DDT in the sea is measured in parts per trillion of seawater. Even at these low levels, however, there is real danger that man's food supply from the sea will decline drastically while world population continues to increase," he stated.

The scientist said the pesticide was "less effective than it once was for nearly 150 species of insect pests have developed resistance to it, and many other pesticides which are more effective to the environment and food supply are now available to take its place."

"We strongly urge that the further use of DDT be banned."

GOP District Meeting Set For June 12

RUPERT — A successor for Republican Legislative District Committee, John C. Rutherford, District 21, will be selected during a legislative district meeting at 8 p.m. June 17, in the Lincoln County Courthouse.

Also during the meeting, recommendations to the governor for filling the vacancy in the District 21 senate seat, vacated by Sen. Mary Brooks, will be made.

District 21 is composed of Blaine, Lincoln and Minidoka counties and voting members of the committee are Republican legislative committees within the three counties. Mr. Peavey noted that the precinct delegates will recommend to the governor for appointment as state senator from District 21.

An absent precinct committee may vote by proxy if he designates two voting and voting members of the committee.

Mr. Peavey is resigning the chairmanship of the committee since he is actively seeking to have his name as one of the three submitted to the governor to replace Sen. Brooks, as the legislative district committee makes the recommendations,

SPENDING CUT DEFENDED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $1 billion cut in military spending probably would eliminate about 20,000 jobs, a planning expert testified today. But if the money were shifted to civilian life, it would create more than 185,000 jobs — a net gain of 15,000, he said.

Exploding Gas Mains Spew Fire Through Indiana City

GARY, Ind. (UPI) — Mrs. Dolores Dobrodecki was talking on the telephone with her mother when she heard a "crackling noise" in the kitchen. She ran up and hurried to investigate — and found flames from every burner on her stove licking the ceiling.

Minutes later her home was gone.

SIX homes were destroyed. Nineteen were damaged. Officially estimated damage is $30,000. Many persons were injured — officials said the casualty toll would have been higher had it not been early afternoon, when fewer people were home. Five were still in hospitals today, one in critical condition.

Thousands of persons were evacuated from the 50-block black area as firemen rushed to the scene and gas was shut off.

Mayor Richard G. Hatcher declared an 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew in the area to prevent looting. Hatcher considered calling in the National Guard, but declined against it. He said

Dad Chains Girl As Measure Of 'Love'

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Darlene Saichek said he loved his 12-year-old daughter, Sheri, so much he chained her to a wall. He was charged with aggravated assault.

"I wanted to protect her," said the 12-year-old elementary school girl Tuesday from jail. "I love my daughter. I'd do anything in the world for her. I know she loves me."

Saichek said his daughter, Sheri, fell and hurt herself while riding her bicycle. He told her to stop riding it and to make sure she always locks the handlebar. She did, he said, and he locked her inside their mobile home Monday.

He then managed to slip out of the home and rode her bicycle to a nearby lake where she spent the day.

Her father returned home before Sheri did. This time he decided not to take any chances. He said he chained her to the wall while he went to the store to buy a lock. She was not able to open the door.

"I wasn't going to leave her that way. I love her."

But a friend of Sheri's happened by, looked through the window, saw the girl and called police.

Policeman R. E. McDonald led a detachment which broke through two locked doors of the

Papyrus Raft Continues Trip

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The Heyerdahl's papyrus raft Ra radiced Tuesday it was well south of the Canary Islands and moving southwest at a speed between two and three knots in moderate seas.

The Norwegian scientist exchanged greetings with Peter Lindstrom, director of the National Geographic museum in Stockholm, over the raft's radio and mentioned that heavy seas had smashed the Ra's rudder over the weekend.

Senate Charts Mining Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. and miners' Sen. Cliff Hansen hearings were scheduled for R-Wyo., and Tuesday, for June 12, on a bill to establish a national policy on mining. This legislation is of potential far-reaching importance to the minerals industry.

our national security, and conducted by Hansen, will be concerned with the subcommittee on economic development." Hansen said. "The hearing will be of minerals, material and fuel of the mineral producing states and the Senate Interior Committee. Hansen is a member of the Senate Interior Committee.

DEBT SOARS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — American increased the country's credit indebtedness by $705 million in April to a total of $1132 billion, the Federal Reserve board reported.

ALL WAS CONFUSION when this truck went around the corner of the alley-between Second Avenue West and Main Avenue on Second Street West. Broken down into tangles, it was noted that (1) the truck entered a one-way alley the wrong way and (2) if forward progress had continued, the fire plug would have snapped and the truck would have been washed for free. Otherwise there was nothing wrong.

Laird Fears Effects Of Troop Ouster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird cautioned today that pullout of troops from the North Atlantic alliance had produced a tendency to plan for earlier use of nuclear weapons in case of war.

At an impromptu Pentagon news conference, Laird expressed concern about a possible "snowballing" effect of Canada's decision to withdraw two-thirds of its 10,000-man contribution to NATO.

Laird said other NATO nations — including the United States — might be tempted to follow the Canadian example. And, he continued, a significant reduction in conventional forces in Europe would make it necessary to plan for earlier use of nuclear weapons.

The defense secretary returned last week from NATO meetings in Brussels, and London and has repeatedly urged Canada to reconsider its decision.

Laird said plain call for NATO to maintain its conventional forces at about present strength for the next five years, with an increase in spending of between 3.5 per cent and 4.5 per cent.

Laird said British Defense Minister Dennis Healy believes the "nuclear threshold" — the point at which consideration would be given to such weapons — has already been lowered.

$10 Million Resort Slated At Ketchum

SUN VALLEY. — Plans have been announced for a $10 million resort-hotel complex in the Warm Springs area adjacent to Sun Valley.

Located between the Bald Mountain ski lift and Warm Springs, the resort will be built individually-owned condominium units.

Named "Calico" by Robert E. Brown Jr., the developer, the project will consist of a main lodge and 120 condominium apartment units built among the aspen, cottonwoods and pines along Warm Springs Creek.

Mr. Brown said the natural setting will be disturbed as little as possible so as to take full advantage of the wooded terrain. The condominiums (171 units) will be studio and two-bedroom units, each with kitchen and fireplace, and will be completely furnished and equipped.

The 40,000-square-foot main service facility, housing restaurrants, lounges, sports shop and meeting rooms.

The architectural firm of Van Stuyck, Callison and Nelson, Seattle; Wood and Martenson, Seattle, will handle consulting engineers, and Johnson, Underkofler & Associates, Boise, will do声, noise, civil and utility consultants, assisted with the project.

The self-contained resort will have tennis courts, swimming pool, an outdoor theater, lawn bowling and play areas. The first development is expected to be completed by December, and will consist of the main lodge and 18 condominium units with accommodations for 100 persons.

Today's Market And Financial Report

Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI)—New reports that the U.S. will send more troops into Vietnam this year caused the stock market to lurch into the plus column Wednesday. Trading was moderately active.

The upswing, however, was slowed by a mixed domestic news background, and as trading swung into the final hour, advances topped declines by about only 50 issues.

White House and State Department officials declined comment on a report President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu may have agreed at the Midway Island meeting Sunday for the first unilateral withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. The report was attributed to unidentified diplomatic sources.

Stocks before 1 p.m., the UPI stock market indicator, measuring 1,526 stocks traded, showed a gain of 0.1 percent, or 1 of the 1,526 issues, 648 advanced and 590 declined.

The Dow Jones average of blue chip industrials was off 0.33 at $90.45 near 1 p.m.; volume was about 8,000,000.

Jones, 19, received a bachelor of science degree and will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force. He has been chosen for pilot training at Webb AFB, Tex.

A 1966 graduate of Malad High School, Jones served during the fall term as a group commander with the rank of cadet lieutenant.

Hailey Gets Petitions On Zoning Plan

HAILEY — Hailey city councilmen heard the first reading of a zoning ordinance at a special meeting Monday night in which petitions requesting an election on the proposal were presented.

Mayor George Allen said the petitions were signed by some 218 persons. After accepting the petitions, he read the first reading of the ordinance. The ordinance will be read twice more before becoming law.

None of the 40 residents attending the special meeting opposed the idea of zoning, but each had some specific part of the proposed ordinance with which he disagreed.

The ordinance is the result of two previous public hearings, at which opposition was expressed to the section dealing with trailer parks. The amended ordinance provides two trailer parking sites in Hailey and does not affect persons already owning trailers and having them parked on their own lots.

'Scrubwoman' Acclaimed Top State Employee

POCATELLO (UPI) — The Idaho State Employees Association's "outstanding woman employee of the year" is Wilma Jones, a Janitress at Idaho State University for the past 12 years.

Mrs. Jones won the title in competition with employees in state jobs throughout Idaho. Gov. Don Samuelson will present Mrs. Jones with a $50 bond and a plaque at a banquet in her honor June 20 in Burley. Sons, Frank, Chet, and Jerry Jordan along with Idaho legislators have been invited to attend the banquet.

Mrs. Jones' letter of award from the association says she has been selected because of her outstanding abilities in working for the state and in contributing to the community.

"You have met and surpassed these qualifications in the most unexcelled manner," the executive secretary noted.

Mrs. Jones, who prefers to call herself a "scrubwoman," said she has no idea why she was chosen for the high honor.

Now, here is why I have to

British King-To-Be Insists On Unique Role Of Equality

LONDON — (NEA) — Prince Charles, the Prince of Wales, has been bucked by his classmates, caned by at least one schoolmaster and has broken his nose playing Rugby football.

On one memorable occasion he broke the law by ordering a chary bistro in a hotel bar. (He was underage at the time.) On another he performed on the cells-in-public.

More recently His Royal Highness has been building a reputation as a comedian by appearing in a Cambridge University undergraduate dressed as a dustman and giving his imitation of Peter Sellers.

These might well be the activities of any ordinary boy from a middle-class home. But it is their third extraordinary in the case of Prince Charles.

No other heir to the British throne has ever "appeared" in public playing a cello or clowning as a dustman. No other future king has ever been part of a Rugby scrum, giving his imitation of Peter Sellers.

Prince Charles comes of age at a time when long-hair drab-clothes and a general scruffiness are the fashion among the nation's youth. Today's hippies and the students who make up the 20-year-old prince will reign as king tomorrow, and it's not surprising that he should cock an ear in their direction.

Prince Charles is no hippie, but at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he is in his second year, he wears the same colorless uniform of corduroys and windbreaker as the other male undergraduates.

This is the age of the New Look, of white shirts and ties, of whom all university examiners were wavy. Prince Charles has changed his luck in competition with Britain's brightest brains. He knows what it is to "swoot" for an exam, as well as to await anxiously for the result.

In his first year Prince Charles got decent marks in archaeology and anthropology (subtitled "the study of man"), and even had a deep abiding interest. He wrote an essay on Papuan village art, and even found time to do an article for Varsity, the student newspaper, giving his impression of Cambridge.

It's a far-away-from-the-days when Edward VII, as Prince of Wales, attended Oxford University. "Bertie," as he was known, was a bit of a different character, and allowed to mix with the other Oxford students for fear that they might contaminate him.

Instead, he lived in a rented house and had his own chef. Selected professors delivered lectures to Bertie and a handful of students. Bertie was a special gown trimmed with gold, and whenever he strolled into a lecture room or attended church services, the other students were expected to spring to their feet and remain standing until the prince was seated.

Prince Charles' great uncle David, the present Duke of Windsor, (briefly King Edward VIII), was the first Oxford undergraduate to have his own private bathroom. Showers also had to wait for Bertie and cut quite a dashing figure in a fur-lined coat.

Unlike his royal predecessors, Prince Charles is no hippie, but at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he is in his second year, he wears the same colorless uniform of corduroys and windbreaker as the other male undergraduates.

Student Coalition Organized To Combat Demonstrations

BY FREDERICK H. TREES

The typical picture is that of some long-haired student radicals taking over a building and then serving on the college administration a set of "non-negotiable" demands.

Now comes a short-cropped, conservative political activist who organized a building seizure to protest the protesters.

Ralph Paladino, 25, an Alt Force veteran and a pale Nixon for President staff member during the 1968 campaign, now leads the Queens College in New York a group called the "Student Coalition" with the single-minded purpose of combatting radical demonstrators—in the streets, if necessary.

During a wave of protests this spring by leftist militants, Paladino's supporters counter-attacked one building where the radicals were sitting in and temporarily occupied another building.

"Our objective is to put pressure on the administration so that it will act out of consequences rather than fear. Up until now," he said, "the other side using force had the total advantage."

In a sense, we're inviting the administration to act against us so we can justify action against the other side without facing charges of political subversion."

Acknowledging the willingness to physically battle the SDS or other radicals, Paladino said:

"If you push up the level of violence beyond that acceptable to the administration, they'll bring in legitimate authority."

By that, he meant the police.

Paladino considers Queens:

Out The Window

NEW YORK—(UPI) — A recent survey showed that pane glass windows in manufacturing plants cost four times more to maintain than glass block panels. The study by Pittsburgh Corning Corporation said the average $8 square foot in plant costs $100.67 to wash and keep in repair. Glass block maintenance for a similar size window averages $26.92, the company says.

NBC Adds Three Top Stars To Fall Lineup Of Shows

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD—(UPI)—NBC TV is continuing to move CBS-TV as the network of the stars, will debut its fall schedule with three more top names: Debbie Reynolds, Bill Cosby and Andy Williams.

The Bill Cosby Show, a half-hour end-of-the-week network's series for the first time since "The Spy," which brought him great fame and many awards. The new show will offer him as "a big city high school gym teacher and amateur coach who moonlights principally as a private investigator" to make ends meet.

The Debbie Reynolds Show, also a half-hour entry, will present the actress-comedienne as "an on-the-go suburban housewife and family circle that includes her husband, that husband." An indication of the direction that the series will probably go can be figured out from the fact that it is being guided by Jess Oppenheimer, who created "Love Lucy."

At Cheam boarding school Prince Charles gave evidence of unusual initiative. Once, finding himself short of pocket money, he sold his alpaca coat to one of his classmates. (T.M. money was refunded later when his horrified parents found out).

At Gordonstoun—the next school Charles attended—he combined a character building rugged outdoor exercise such as climbing wood and clearing up after picnics.

With Timbertop you had to go on expeditions every week, from the bush, the prince recalls. "It was 90 in the shade Sunday nights. One show, there was a cold snap and you sort of ran around among the kangaroos and things."

His Royal Highness once made the mistake of walking into the dorm carrying an umbrella (he had been raining quite heavily).

They all looked rather quizzically at this strange English lad and he waited on, having turned the lights out, were mirthful shouts of "Oh, pommy bastard."

"Australia was the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me."

Some Britons, however, say Prince Charles' education for a democratic age won't be complete unless he studies such heads of state as George Washington and "combines the action and animation to recreate 'The Happenings in Thurber's World.'

Another new NBC-TV series, "And Then Came Bronson"—an anti-war western starring Michael Parks as a roving freeloader—who motorcycles across America and gets involved with many persons. And yet another new hour show, "Bracken's World," deals with "the behind-the-scenes story of moviemaking," stars Eleanor Parker and was created by Dorothy Kingsley.

Prospects for any long-term impact of groups like the Student Coalition at Queens are not great because they offer no program with which politically aware students can identify.

On the other hand, they possess the potential for considerable short range escalation of campus turmoil.
